

Exhaust collector

The discussion about header wrap got me to bring up this topic.

Now I am not in favor of any new rules unless it is really needed. But this is something that needs to be addressed.

The exhaust collector is not included in the rules on the header. I would like to see the addition to the rules of having the factory collector being required.

Nobody I know is using a custom piece at this time but it is open to being done. Someone with the time and money could possibly come up with a collector that may alter HP or TQ curve.

May as well get this included before we get too far.
